R. G. Kern Calls Impromptu Meeting

About 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon R. G. Kern, of the county road commission, gave out the word that a federal location engineer, L. L. Piersall, was here from Frankfort and desired to meet as many of our citizens as possible that he might learn their opinions regarding the location of the Midland Trail through Mt. Sterling.

About seventy-five business men, some from the county, met Mr. Piersall in the county court room. Mr. Kern stated clearly the object of the meeting and what had been done under the direction of the local commissioners. W. H. Potts, engineer, gave approximate estimates of the difference in costs by what was termed the C. & O. route and a route up North Mayville street to the Hinkston pike and thence to the Bath and Montgomery line. At this point Mr. Piersall asked for an expression from the citizens present as to the route preferred, and their reason for it. At this juncture the body took form by electing L. T. Chiles chairman and J. W. Hedden, Sr., secretary. A motion by Mr. Hedden carried to take a vote of the body as to the route they desired. The body then gave expression by a unanimous vote of a preference of the Owingsville pike route over the Hinkston pike route.

A motion made by Judge H. C. McKee carried that a line parallel to the present Mt. Sterling and Owingsville turnpike be surveyed, the cost estimated and that it be presented for consideration as to which of the routes, this or the present route known, and the Mt. Sterling and Owingsville pike be approved by the people of Montgomery county at a call meeting.

On motion carried, the chairman appointed a right-of-way committee, consisting of James Magowan, David Fox and Col. Gatewood, with instructions to be ready to report to a call meeting by the chairman.

After Mr. Piersall's statement that he would have the C. & O. parallel route surveyed and a statement from Mr. Magowan that he would give the right-of-way along this line, the meeting adjourned subject to a call from the chairman.

FOR SALE—Walnut dining room table of eight pieces. Only used five months. Looks like new.—Apply at this office.

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING

The regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Mt. Sterling National Bank of Mt. Sterling, Ky., for the election of a board of directors and for the transaction of such other business as may lawfully come before it will be held at the office of the bank in the city of Mt. Sterling, Ky., on Tuesday, January 9, 1923, at 10 o'clock.—W. L. Killpatrick, Cashier.

HOME-MADE CANDY—Telephone the Johnson Sisters at 475 for your Christmas candy. Several different kinds, packed in tin boxes, at $1.25 per pound. (17-3t)

It is a real great man who can live up to the creases in his trousers.

Tobacco Market Opened Monday

The local receiving plant of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association opened yesterday to receive the 1922 crop of this section. There was only about 52,000 pounds on the floor, which brought an advance of about nine cents per pound. The offerings were very inferior, but today's floor is said to be much better. There seems to be some misunderstanding among farmers as to the advancement which they receive. It is not known what proportion of the final settlement the advancement will represent and this cannot be determined until the entire 1922 crop has been sold. The two advancements on the 1921 crop were of the same amount, but it will not be known until the final settlement is made early in January just what the individual crops averaged. The local floors are booked full until Christmas and capacity floors are expected for each day.

The burley association has sold its remaining 1921 holdings of about 3,000,000 pounds for an average reported to be around 52 cents and the farmers are assured of receiving a final settlement of this crop early in January.

While advancements per grade are practically the same as last year, the crop in this section is much better, and it is believed the advance will run from 10 to 12 cents per pound.

FOR RENT—Two light housekeeping rooms and bath.—Miss Luella Bright.

MRS. LANE DEAD

A message received here Saturday announced the sudden death of Mrs. Barker Lane which occurred Friday night at her home in Peculiar, Mo. Mrs. Lane, who was a former resident of this county, was well known and widely related throughout this section. She was the daughter-in-law of Mrs. Crit Lane, of this city, and is survived by her husband and several children. Funeral and burial took place Sunday at her late home.

LOST OR STOLEN—Two 5 or 6 months-old puppies. One black and white; one brindle.—Hettie Brockway.

CAR OVERTURNS

The coupe driven by Mrs. Jack Owings skidded on the muddy road yesterday as she was returning to her home from town and overturned in the ditch. Mrs. Owings, who was alone in the car at the time, escaped uninjured. The accident occurred near George Hamilton's place, when Mrs. Owings attempted to drive past two wagons on the road. The car was badly damaged.

Two Prohibition Officers Killed By Moonshiners In Menefee County

Robert L. Duff, of Owingsville, federal prohibition agent, was shot and killed Saturday afternoon when he, in company with other government agents, attempted a raid on what is known as Ballard's still, near Cedar Grove in Menefee county, only a few miles from the Montgomery county line. Duff, it is said, was shot while trying to force his way into a cave where it was thought the still was located. His body was literally riddled with bullets and his companions were forced to flee. His body was recovered several hours later by Tom Greenwade and Deputy Sheriff Beall Hadden, of this city, who went to the scene following the killing.

Duff's body was stripped of money, his badge, weapons and watch, and it is believed the body was fired into after he was dead, as it contained eight or ten bullet holes, all said to be from a .45 revolver, the kind Bob Ballard is alleged to use.

On Sunday about fifteen or twenty revenue agents from all over the state gathered in this city and went to the scene of the crime. They found that the still had been deserted and the operators had taken to the woods. The still was the most complete one seen in this section and was destroyed by the officers. While being destroyed, David Treadway, son of W. P. Treadway, of this city, and one of the posse, and who had ventured about 100 yards beyond the other officers, was shot through the head by a high-powered rifle and instantly killed, the bullet passing entirely through his head. The officers realizing that to continue the pursuit would be suicidal, they returned to this city, where they disbanded, but it is believed, will return to the scene within the next few days.

The still is thought to have been operated by Bob and Charles Ballard, who, in company with a number of their confederates are believed to be responsible for the two deaths. A reward of $500 each for their capture has been offered by Governor Morrow at the request of Circuit Judge Henry H. Prewitt.

No stone will be left unturned to bring the murderers to justice and it is hoped this may be accomplished without additional loss of life, but the federal authorities are determined, and state they are going to have the guilty parties, dead or alive.

When the news of the two murders reached this city, excitement ran high and many unfounded rumors were circulated, some to the effect that several other officers had been killed. It is not known what will be the next move upon the part of the officers, but they are understood to be perfecting some plan whereby the 'shiners will be captured without further bloodshed.

The two Ballards, who are alleged to have operated the still, are sons of Jeff Ballard, who, together with another son, were placed under arrest prior to the Saturday raid, but both of whom later escaped, and are supposed to have joined the 'shiners. The Ballards are widely known in this section and have been in trouble before, Bob Ballard being a fugitive from justice at the present time, having escaped from the Frenchburg jail several months ago when, it is alleged, he made the statement that he would never again be taken alive.

Prohibition Agent Duff was widely known in this and Bath counties, being a former jailer of that county, and was known as a fearless, honorable, upright man, who had the respect of everyone. He had made a splendid officer and was quite popular in this city, where his untimely death is deeply deplored. His remains were brought to this city Saturday evening, prepared for burial and removed to his home in Owingsville Sunday afternoon. The funeral was held in that city yesterday afternoon.

Young Treadway was the youngest son of W. P. Treadway, of this city, another prohibition agent, and had only returned from Irvine Saturday afternoon, where he had been working for several months. He joined the posse Sunday morning in company with his father. He was about 23 years of age and said to be a splendid young man with a large acquaintance who deeply mourn his untimely death. His funeral was held in this city this afternoon, conducted by Rev. B. W. Trimble, and the remains were laid to rest in Macbelpah cemetery.

School Children Given Examination

During the past few weeks Miss Florence Wallingford, county nurse, and local physicians have given each child in the Mt. Sterling city school a thorough physical examination.

The children's eyes were tested, using the Snellen chart, and they were weighed and measured to determine their status of nutrition. Defects that retarded growth and development were noted, and a notification was sent to their parents, urging them to see their family physician and have such defects remedied.

The home economic department of the city school has included practical nursing course outlined by the American Red Cross in their regular curriculum. Pupils, in addition to their regular credits, will receive a certificate for this course from National Red Cross headquarters upon their graduation.

A report of this school inspection shows that a total of four hundred and sixty-six pupils were examined. Of this number two hundred and sixteen have not been vaccinated, two hundred and eighteen are ten percent, or more underweight, twenty-one have defective eyelids, nineteen defective vision, one hundred and sixty-nine have had tonsils, ninety-five suffer from bad teeth, three have skin diseases, two pupils are cross-eyed, and one has abnormal structure of the frontal bones.

IMPORTANT MEETING

The W. M. U. will meet at the Baptist church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Being the last meeting of the year, a full attendance is urged.

Hardman's Trial Now In Progress

The trial of Scooby Hardman, charged with the murder of Leola Renaker, wealthy Winchester poultry dealer, was called for trial in the Clark circuit court yesterday morning, and the following jury was selected from the 200 special jurors summoned from Fayette county: J. A. Coyle, farmer, Lexington; foreman; W. H. Giltner, clerk, Lexington; E. F. Elkin, farmer, Harrodsburg pike; W. D. Land, farmer, Walnut Hill; J. W. Smith, farmer, Georgetown pike; Horace H. Wilson, garage proprietor, Lexington; John Calhoun, farmer, Georgetown pike; J. J. Shropshire, merchant, Lexington; Peter G. Powell, insurance man, Lexington; H. C. Cassidy, farmer, Richmond pike; R. E. Hughes, salesman, Lexington; Richard Steele, farmer, Frankfort pike.

The jury was completed yesterday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock and the trial will begin in earnest today. To all three of the charges made by the commonwealth, murder, conspiracy to murder and murder through attorney, "Not guilty."

The trials of Mrs. Nancy Katherine Renaker, widow of the slain man, and Reese Fox, indicted in connection with the murder, will be held separately.

Only a limited number of spectators will be admitted and those must carry cards entitling them to seats.

The case has created more interest than any case tried in Kentucky in years and will be watched with the keenest interest all over the nation. The trial is being presided over by Judge Shackelford, circuit judge in that district.

FOR SALE—One dozen purebred Plymouth Rock pullets; one dozen silver laced Wyandotte pullets; three pairs of English ringneck pheasants.—Mrs. James Cravens, phone 232 W-1.

AGED WOMAN DEAD

Mrs. Elizabeth Itingo, aged 84 years, died Monday morning, December 4. She was an aunt of Tom William and Gilbert Thomas, of this city. Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday, burial following in the Winchester cemetery. Messrs. William and Thomas attended the funeral services, conducted by Rev. Bradley.

TO FLY HOME

Ed Foley, former Mt. Sterling boy, recently graduated from the Curtis Aviation School in New York, is planning to spend the holidays in Mt. Sterling, where he will be a guest in the home of Mrs. Peter Kelly. Young Foley will make the trip by airplane in a machine of his own manufacture.

Secret Wedding Is Made Public

The marriage of Miss Linnie Hoskins to Orville Alfrey, which occurred in Paris last Tuesday, has just been made public. Miss Hoskins, who has been a student at St. Agatha's Academy in Winchester, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Cassidy, of Winchester, and Mr. Alfrey, motored to Paris, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Ellis. Following the wedding the couple returned to Winchester where the bride again entered school. The marriage was kept a profound secret and did not become public until yesterday, when the bride's sister, Mrs. Cliff McCormick, went to Winchester and persuaded her sister to give up her classes and return to this city.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hoskins and lives a short distance from the city on the Winchester pike. She is a lovely young girl, possessed with an exceptionally sweet disposition, which has won for her friends wherever she is known, being a decided favorite among her circle of acquaintances.

The groom is a son of William Alfrey, is a member of the taxi firm of Cockrell & Alfrey and is at present a valued employee at the local post-office. He is a splendid young business man with a host of friends and, like his bride, is exceedingly popular.

WANTED TO BUY—Ford roadster with starter. Must be in good condition. Apply at this office. (17-2t)

SIX YEARS SINCE DEDICATION

Six years ago from last Sunday the new Baptist church house was dedicated, Dr. Bryan, of the state board of missions, delivering the sermon. About $9,000 was raised that day. The work of building this new church was accomplished during the pastorate of Rev. J. S. Wilson.

FOR SALE—Two good cows for sale. Jersey; fresh.—William L. Wright, Indian Fields. (17-2t)

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED OUT

The fire department was called to the home of Henry Greenwade, North Queen street, Sunday night. The alarm was turned in by one of the neighbors, but the trouble was found to be only a chimney burning out, and no damage was done.

FOR RENT—A modern four-room flat convenient to business section.—Phone 237.

REVIVAL AT FARMERS

At a protracted meeting just closed at the Farmers Baptist church, W. S. Scantland, the pastor, doing the preaching, thirty-one persons were added to the church, twenty-nine by baptism and two by relation.

HARDING'S ADDRESS

BROADCAST BY RADIO

Thousands in distant cities listened in on President Harding's address to congress, broadcast by radio through the naval station at Anacostia, and passed along through various relay stations to a good part of the country. It was the first time the new voice amplifying device in the house of representatives had been connected up with the wireless.

One of those who heard the address, without attending the joint session was Mrs. Harding, who had a special receiving set installed in her sick room at the White House.

If things keep on, the roads of the United States can be paved with used home brew bottle caps and all of the swamps and low places can be filled with the discarded "mash."

HARDING'S MESSAGE

President Harding in his annual message delivered to congress in person deals with nearly a score of subjects, chief among them prohibition, farm credits, the transportation problem, child labor and immigration. The executive announces his purpose to invite the governors of the states and territories to an early conference with the federal executive authorities with a view to adopting definite policies of national and state co-operation in administering the prohibition laws. He says the day is unlikely to come when the prohibition amendment will be repealed and that the nation should adapt its course accordingly.

Americans, while sympathizing with European financial distress, are naturally cautious to know how much is due to bad business management.

$9,000,000 For Dry Enforcement

Far in advance of the usual time, the house Saturday passed the treasury appropriation bill, the first of the big supply measures.

It carries $115,000,000, of which $9,000,000 will be for prohibition enforcement. The measure was passed without a record vote and virtually without change, the only material departure from the committee recommendation being in the elimination of the appropriation for an under-secretary of the treasury.

A provision of the bill authorizing the bureau of engraving to install power presses in order to reduce the number of plate printers resulted in a three-hour parliamentary battle Saturday, but finally was approved.

A final effort by Representative Tinkham, Republican, of Massachusetts, to have the bill recommitted because it did not require civil service examination for prohibition enforcement officers was defeated. Mr. Tinkham and Representative Hill, Republican, of Maryland standing alone in support of it.

While hunting near Princeton, T. T. Barrett shot and killed a well-marked red fox. He took the pelt to a taxidermist to be made into a fur for his wife.

Meantime pedestrians should remember that most people who drive cars have no designs upon them and should do their share of guarding.

Produce Review

The demand for dressed poultry has not been brisk, and selling markets have reflected the condition quickly, somewhat lower prices prevailing. Quite a large surplus has been placed in storage for sale later.

The United States Department of Agriculture made an exhibit at the International Livestock Show at Chicago to show the benefit of culling the flock. To enable the poultryman to cull his flocks properly, the exhibit gave the points to be looked for when determining a poor layer or a good layer. These points are quickly learned and are means of increasing profits from poultry.

Arrivals of live poultry at eastern markets have been lighter following Thanksgiving, but as quite a few cars were carried over from last week, there has been a full supply available.

Deliveries of cream are about normal for this season of the year, but the market tendency has been higher and this has been reflected in the higher prices for butterfat throughout the producing sections. Consumption of butter is not as heavy as a few weeks ago and any further decrease in consumption or increase in production would have a tendency to make for lower prices.

The supply of fresh eggs continues light. Considering the demand, prices have reacted a little from the high point, and buyers are taking a more conservative position, due to prospects of some increase in production throughout the west and southwest.

CAROLINA WAYS

What the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina, touching on an obsolete hospitality, has long been history, but probably will long remain as a colorful story of the old south.

The governor of North Carolina, however, has risen to the occasion again and in opening the Democratic state campaign in the Tarheel state said:

"We authorized $50,000,000 for roads. The people were paying automobile tax anyway. We increased it some, not much; but 1 cent per gallon on gasoline, and converted it all into an interest paying fund, and instead of idling as it came, trying to build roads with it, we are selling the bonds and building the finest system of highways in America. We did not increase tax on anybody to do it except the automobile owners, and on him little. We simply applied sound business principles to the situation and behold the magic-like construction of the system."

To which the Elizabethtown News has made the following pertinent comment:

This is just the proposition which was defeated in the Kentucky legislature last winter because it was dragged into politics.

If North Carolina can carry and arrange to pay a $50,000,000 bond issue for roads by automobile taxes and a tax on gasoline, so can Kentucky. There are more automobiles in this state than in the Old North State and we consume more gasoline. The assessable wealth is greater in Kentucky and so is the population.

It was not made a political issue in North Carolina and it should not be made one in Kentucky. The News is heartily in favor of submitting the bond issue for roads to the people by the next legislature whether the Republican party or Democratic party has control of the affairs of the state. Politics has been the bane of Kentucky and we want none of it in the road proposition.

Until Kentucky takes over and builds all the principal highways and maintains them, which is provided for in the act, the counties cannot build roads leading into them.

Take Hardin county for instance. When the Dixie highway is built through the county and the Hardstown and Leitchfield roads are also constructed the county's road fund is so meager that it is not sufficient to build turnpikes into these roads.

When the state can take over and maintain this 100 miles of road then the county can build roads leading into them.

The News trusts that the bond issue will be submitted to the people by the next legislature and if the cost per mile is properly limited and proper safe guards are placed around the expenditure of the money we think the people will vote for it, as we are satisfied the automobile and gasoline taxes will retire the bonded debt in thirty years and maintain the roads as the are built.

North Carolina certainly set a good example for Kentucky.—Editorial in Pineville Sun.

HULL BEGINS 1924 CAMPAIGN

Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic national committee, has taken the initial steps for the holding of Jackson day dinners on or about January 8 throughout the United States in order to promptly and properly utilize the fruits of the recent Democratic victory and to initiate the Democratic presidential campaign of 1924.

He also suggests that other Democratic anniversaries and appropriate occasions be utilized in the same way.

Chairman Hull had addressed a letter to Democratic national committeemen and state and county chairmen suggesting that Jackson day be made the occasion for gatherings of Democrats in every section as means of inspiring members of the party to keep alive the eternal principles and sound policies of the Democratic party and to renew their activity for the restoration of that party to complete power in 1924.

He intends, so far as it lies in his power, that the Democratic party in the nation shall be a militant party, and there can be no more appropriate time to infuse the spirit of militancy into party organizations everywhere than on the birthday of the greatest of the militant Democratic party leaders.

Recognizing the great part played by the press of the country in the recent campaign under his national leadership, Chairman Hull is desirous of the fullest co-operation between party leaders and the Democratic press in making the greatest success of the kind in the history of the party. He believes that the keynote of victory in the 1924 campaign is a united democracy. From the beginning of his chairmanship he has devoted much of his time and ability to bringing together every discordant element and fusing them into a harmonious whole. The results of the late election bear evidence of soundness and success of this organization policy.

If the plans of Chairman Hull for the Jackson day dinners throughout the nation shall be carried out in the manner in which they are conceived, the leading Democrats of the nation as well as Democrats of local prominence will be speakers on this great occasion, and with the aid of the press, both in promoting the dinners and in reporting the results, the campaign of 1924 will be initiated in a manner to inspire general party activity, prophetic of national victory.

Queer Feelings

"Some time ago, I was very irregular," writes Mrs. Cora Robie, of Pikeville, Ky. "I suffered a great deal, and knew I must do something for this condition. I suffered mostly with my back and a weakness in my limbs. I would have dreadful headaches. I had hot flashes and very queer feelings, and oh, how my head hurt! I read of and of others, who seemed to have the same troubles I had, being benefited, so I began to use it. I found it most beneficial. I took several bottles . . . and was made so much better I didn't have any more trouble of this kind. It regulated me."

Cardui has been found very helpful in the correction of many cases of painful female disorders, such as Mrs. Robie mentions above. If you suffer as she did, take Cardui—a purely vegetable, medicinal tonic, in use for more than 40 years. It should help you.

NEW FARM ACCOUNT BOOK NOW READY FOR FARMERS

The fifth annual edition of the Kentucky Farm Account Book, prepared by farm management specialists of the College of Agriculture, has just come off the press and is ready for distribution to farmers of the state. It has been announced at Lexington. Close to 3,000 of the books were distributed last year, but it is expected that an even larger number of farmers in the state will keep records on their farm business during the coming year.

With the exception of a few improvements suggested by farmers who have kept books, the new account book is similar to the one of last year and contains 40 pages. It provides space for inventories of the acreage and yield of crops, land, buildings and fences, livestock, machinery, feeds, seeds and supplies, growing crops and winter plowing and a map of the farm. Space is also provided for recording the receipts and expenses of the farm business. The receipts are classified under six main heads, while expenses are classified under twelve main heads.

Among the features provided in the book are a summary of the year's business, changes in the farm business suggested by the accounts, directions for finding the income from each kind of livestock, records of mortgages, notes and accounts, directions showing the farmer how to find his net worth, breeding records, farm notes and the time, rate and method of seeding farm crops in the state.

Among the reasons outlined in the book for keeping farm record are: 1. Farm accounts furnish simple means for determining the net income from the farm business for the year. 2. A study of these records will show up the strong and weak points of the business and point the way to more profitable organization and management of the farm the following year. 3. The book may be used in making out income tax returns. 4. Farm records are helpful in establishing better loan relations between the banker and the farmer.

Copies of the book may be obtained by sending 15 cents to the College of Agriculture at Lexington to cover the cost of printing and mailing.

Avenges Father's Death In Carter

Vengeance stalked the streets of Carter county's capital Saturday at Grayson as Paul Herron, 34, farmer, was shot and killed. It is alleged, by Harrison Blanton, 23, farmer, on Main street, two squares away from the court house in which an hour before Herron had been acquitted of the murder of William Blanton, father of Harrison Blanton.

Blanton was taken to the Lloyd county jail at Catlettsburg by a deputy sheriff shortly after noon Saturday on an order from Judge Henry L. Woods. County officials feared a demonstration by the populace.

Within an hour after the killing Blanton was indicted for willful murder by the grand jury and his trial set for a special term of the Carter circuit court during the first week of January.

The shooting occurred in front of the Commercial bank. Three shots were fired into Herron's back by Blanton. It is alleged, Herron, fell and Blanton ran into the Citizens' bank, where he was captured.

He was rushed to the county jail and kept there until taken to Catlettsburg. Feeling ran high at Grayson Saturday night and the little town feared that more trouble would follow. Paul Herron, it was charged, shot and killed William Blanton, 41, farmer, father of Harrison Blanton, near Grayson on July 25. Herron was acquitted of this charge by a Carter county jury Saturday. He was on his way home when he was killed.

Appointment of Warren Blanton, a brother of Harrison Blanton, as deputy sheriff in Carter county several months ago is given in reports as the underlying cause of the two tragedies. A number of citizens of Grayson and those who live near the Blanton home at Upper Wilson had signed a petition to remove him from office, it was alleged. This opposition to Warren Blanton is asserted by some to be the reason for "bad blood" which is alleged to exist.

James Mullins, Arthur Mullins and Bert Terry, all of Upper Wilson, were also acquitted Saturday along with Herron on charges of having been aiders and abettors to the killing of William Blanton.

IMITATION

"What adult deed is there that children will not at once imitate? Therefore be careful, you grown-up people, what you do in the presence of these little ones."—Froebel.

The family lit at breakfast, mother, daddy and baby Betty, aged two. Everything is very cheerful and happy until the baby decides she must have the inside part of a roll. Now mother doesn't think that the soft hot bread is good for baby's youthful stomach and so she says, "No." Betty becomes disgruntled and turns to her usual court of appeals—daddy. It happens, however, that daddy knows that mother is right in a quandary. So for the time being Betty waits in disappointment. But mother has to see about something in the kitchen. As soon as she is well out of the room daddy leans over to Betty, stuffs the roll in her mouth, and says, "Here, hurry and take it before your mother comes back."

This illustration speaks for itself. What kind of a standard is daddy setting before his Betty who is in truth the pride of his heart? Children learn by imitation, and if the examples set them are not worthy, they can't be expected to invent worthy ones all by themselves. A parent's indulgence of his child should not make him willing to sacrifice the child's future standards to his present pleasure. With parents it is often a case of its being harder to discipline themselves than to discipline their children. Because they want the full wealth of their child's love they buy it with weakness. As a result they receive a great deal of affection, provided the child always gets what it wants, and have a great deal of trouble when it doesn't. True, this little Betty loves her daddy and in any predicament or childish unhappiness calls always for him, but should he be proud to be called by the baby whose love he has bought with pampering?

What is more, such examples will increasingly lower the baby's standard and will warp her viewpoint beyond repair. For since children do develop through imitation, Betty will probably be the sort of little girl who must have what she wants regardless of everything else; all because her father taught her how.

Therefore, it is well for parents to watch first their own weaknesses so there won't be so many for their children to imitate.—Sophie Kitchner.

A suggestion has been made that King George go to Dublin to open the new Irish parliament. Recent happenings there would tend to the belief that it would require at least a pair of kings to open it.—Louisville Times.

WHAT THE ROUTE OF THE MIDLAND TRAIL WILL BE

If Federal Location Engineer L. L. Piersall gives heed to the voice of the people as expressed on last Saturday afternoon, the Midland Trail will not go the Hinkston pike route. The seventy-five voters in mass meeting unanimously opposed the Hinkston route. One of the reasons given was the short street angle at Main and Maysville streets and this was a good one from the standpoint that a short turn, when speeding, is liable to turn over the car. Another reason given, and it was very good, was the people voting for a bond issue have in mind when voting only one route, and that by the way of the turnpike leading from Mt. Sterling to Owingsville, and this was another good reason, and probably the best of all was that in going by the way of Maysville street to the Hinkston pike the route would be in front of the public school building, where hundreds of children go and cross the street fronting the school property. Such a crossing would be too dangerous to be considered for a moment, and, in the language of Mr. Piersall, this is certainly a good reason, for it would imperil the lives of the children going to and from school, and should not be tolerated for even a moment. Such a route with such a subject should not be considered for even a minute. Then there are the reasons given heretofore, showing Mt. Sterling would be left about a mile from the business part of the city. The road passing through the city proper over which strangers going either east or west would be passing daily would be an advertisement to Mt. Sterling, and if the city would be benefited the county would be as well, for one cannot be benefited to the exclusion of the other, and for this reason this road should pass through the business center of the city, as voted. The people of Montgomery county believed this the route when voting and so did the voters of Bath county. A technical evasion is without sincerity and should not be encouraged. While technicality may pass in sincerity, it does not; not be encouraged. If, as we said first, the voters settle the question of location of the Midland Trail, it is all over, for the people are of one voice, "The Owingsville road route."

LAWLESSNESS

So long as laws are on the statute books good citizens will of their own volition be subject to them. The law forbids the making and dispensing of alcoholic drinks and the reason for these laws is that they make demons of men, and they must be enforced. The United States government says these strong and intoxicating drinks must not be made, and when Uncle Sam speaks that should settle the question. These law violators may escape for a few days, but they will pay far their acts. The government will catch every one of her violators and one of these days we will know that prohibition does prohibit; that the laws have been enforced; that desperados have had their day; the younger set, born and unborn, will know of these trying times only as they turn pages in history.

THE PRESIDENT'S WAYS

We see no reason for President Harding to bring his cabinet together on the question of law enforcement, when he had already committed himself on enforcing the prohibition laws. Mr. Harding has as president sufficient powers with which to enforce the laws and, to our mind, it is up to him to see that moonshining and bootlegging become a matter of the past. Grant said, "Give me men and money and I will subdue the rebellion." Men and money were given and the rebellion is now scarcely known, only by the historian. Harding has at his command both men and money, and he has only to command and moonshining and bootlegging will become events of the past.

"THE LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME"

John Fox, Jr., was a master of delineation of mountain characters of the south. His Kentuckians in the "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," which in dramatic form comes to the Tabb Theatre Friday, December 15, matinee and night, are real people, not the fancies of an author's mind. They have their feuds, their strong likes and dislikes, their quaint ideas of chivalry. The central figure of the play is "Chad," a wanderer until it is disclosed that he is of excellent blood and has been sought by a wealthy uncle. Then there is the girl, Melissa, the sweet, winning maid of the mountains. About these two is woven one of the most fascinating love stories conceivable. "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" is filled with delightful characters such as the Major and the Squire, who are such striking characters in the story. Great as the book was, and there can be no question on this score, the play is even better.

CLOSING OUT

On another page of this issue is an advertisement inviting the Christmas trade desiring any article in the jewelry, silver and fancy goods lines. This is an advertisement of Lee S. Baldwin, of Winchester. Mr. Baldwin is not a stranger to our people who do shopping in Winchester. He has been engaged in the jewelry business for more than 30 years and has built up a trade on high-class merchandise, sold at a reasonable profit. The stock of diamonds and other rare jewels is very attractive and the person who visits this auction sale now going on in Winchester will have them knocked down at a price of his or her own naming. In addition to these rare jewels will be sold without reserve Mr. Baldwin's stock of standard silverware, purchased not for an auction sale, but of the high-class of goods that builds up a trade. These goods go at a price of your own naming also. Then there are clocks, watches, umbrellas, canes, etc. All these goods are fine and will be sold under the hammer.

The old-fashioned broad-minded man who believed that there were exceptions to all rules now has a narrow-minded son who believes that there are violations of all rules.

Ballards To Be Bombed, Report

A special dispatch from Covington says:

"Preparations to mass 500 prohibition agents equipped with bombing planes and machine guns for a wholesale onslaught of the mountain stronghold of 'Bad Bob' Ballard's band of Menefee county moonshiners, are being made by the federal authorities, according to three officials who returned to Covington from Mt. Sterling Monday. The three had been part of the posse of 25 prohibition agents who were repulsed with two dead after a two days' siege of the moonshiners on the mountain near the east fork of Slate creek.

"Temporary suspension of the activities of the federal officials was forced when it became apparent that it was futile for the prohibition men to attempt to cope with the crack shot mountaineers with ordinary weapons, the returned officers said. The three men, Elmer Cornell, James

Wood and W. C. Huddleston, accompanied the second posse, and were near David Treadway when he was killed Sunday.

"They said the war department would be appealed to for two bombing planes and a number of machine guns.

"Only by bombing the entire mountain will the prohibition agents be able to drive the moonshiners from the caves and natural barricades afforded by the wild section of the state, declared Cornell. Belief that moonshiners from other mountain districts are constantly reinforcing the ones entrenched in the Slate creek section, was expressed by Cornell."

The above report is denied by state prohibition officers at Lexington, although S. T. Collins, state prohibition director, stated that efforts would not cease until the fugitives had been brought to justice.

LET US NOT FORGET

When the Salvation Army Home Service appeal is brought to your home by your mail carrier, read it over carefully. Then consider the vast amount of good they do by many instances. Ask yourself if there is any reason why you should not make a donation for this worthy cause. It should be remembered that they were the standbys of the soldier boys in the trenches. That is history.

They are doing a world of good for the poor. Besides that, they are caring for scores of infants who never will know their parents. On the other hand, there are scores of infirm persons who need help in the way of provisions, coal, clothing and medicine. And we all want to see the poor children remembered by Santa Claus. Imagine the glee when the Santa Claus of the Salvation Army steps into the homes of these tots with toys and the like. Picture it in your own mind. Could you give to a worthier cause?

Frank Perry, of the Exchange Bank of Kentucky, is the treasurer of the appeal.

JOHN BRADFORD MEMORIAL

A number of years ago a group of newspaper men made a pilgrimage to Lexington from Cincinnati, where they had been in attendance at a journalistic conference, to pay homage at the shrine of John Bradford, editor of the Kentucky Gazette, the first newspaper published west of the Allegheny mountains.

Then it was found that, although copies of the paper he had edited in a frontier town at the very dawn of the eighteenth century were the much prized possessions of libraries and historical societies, and history reserved a prominent place for Bradford's name among the pioneers of American journalism, no marker of any kind indicated the spot where he had established his paper and spent the latter part of his useful life.

Faced with this situation, a number of history lovers of Lexington formed and incorporated a society which should have for its purpose the perpetuation of the name of John Bradford. The work of this society has now resulted in the launching of a campaign for the raising of funds for the Bradford memorial, the initial step of which will be taken in the broadcasting of letters to newspaper editors and history lovers everywhere in an effort to interest them in the move.

"It is the newspaper editors, more than anyone else, it seems to me," Miss Florence Dillard, secretary of the Bradford club, said, "who should be particularly interested in the memorial. The efforts of the Bradford society should especially appeal to Kentucky editors, since he was the first member of their profession to labor in this field and has left an indelible stamp on the journalism of the state."

John Bradford has been called the "Benjamin Franklin of the west." There are three influences, according to Judge Charles Kerr, former circuit judge of Fayette county, that have indelibly left their impression on Lexington. "They are Transylvania College, the public library and the Kentucky Gazette, without any one of which Lexington would not have been the same."

John Bradford, a Virginia planter, who had learned printing in his native estate, came to the district of Kentucky with the tide of western immigration in 1785. A year later as an inducement for the establishment of a newspaper he was granted a plot of land in Lexington, then the metropolis of the west, and described by one historian as a "city sheltering 1,000 souls and accounted at the dawn of the eighteenth century not only the principal, but the most fashionable town of the trans-Appalachian."

Here John Bradford settled and on August 11, 1787, published the first issue of the Kentucky Gazette. When Bradford brought his little printing outfit to Lexington it was carried on the backs of mules through the wilderness from Limestone (now Maysville) and was the only newspaper within 500 miles. The press, type and paper were brought from Philadelphia by wagon over post-road to Pittsburg, then by flatboat down the Ohio to Maysville and by horse over the blazed trail to Lexington.

The Kentucky Gazette was, when first issued, a single sheet of newsprint, 10 inches by 9 1/2, with three columns to a page. It was characterized by the large amount of foreign news it contained despite the poor facilities for the transporting of news at that time, its advertisements and the literary endeavors of its patrons.

"Bradford," according to his own historian, "had the requisite ingenuity for a backwoods printer and whittled from basswood (linden) blocks, large letters and ornaments besides small cuts for advertisements, with which he illustrated his diminutive journal."

Today old copies of the Gazette are being studied and reread by people anxious to get a clear picture of Lexington as it used to be. Nowhere, it is stated, is early frontier life depicted with truer effect than in the journal of this Virginia planter.

Bradford was not only a newspaper editor, but a citizen who left his mark upon his generation. He was a member of the board of trustees of Transylvania College and a member of the city board of trustees. At the city hall are records of the proceedings of the city fathers during these early days which contain many references to him.

His name appears on the list of contributors to the "Fayette Hospital," the first institution of its kind in the west and the second state asylum in the United States. The building of the first hospital still stands and is used to house negro patients at the Eastern State Hospital.

Bradford was also one of the committee who raised the money for the establishment of the first public li-

OVER SIX MILLION DRAWN BY KENTUCKY PENSIONERS

Only eleven states have more United States pensioners than Kentucky or draw larger amounts in pensions than is paid to the Kentucky pensioners, according to the annual report of the commissioner. There were 13,469 Kentuckians on the federal pension rolls at the end of the last fiscal year, drawing $6,256,777.77 a year. In the entire United States there are 543,570 pensioners drawing $252,382,671.79 a year. Ohio has the largest number of pensioners.

WILSON IS PERFECT PATIENT

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was the guest of women Democrats of Maryland who gathered to celebrate the recent Democratic victory. Mrs. Wilson motored to Baltimore from Washington with Mrs. Edna Heim, wife of Rear Admiral James Meredith Heim, who acted as Mrs. Wilson's secretary on her European trip.

Mrs. Wilson said that the former president, while not so far on the road to health as recent newspaper reports have indicated, is much better than he has been at any time since his recent illness.

"Mr. Wilson," she said, "is the most wonderful patient imaginable.

He also has the greatest store of patience which it is possible to have, and he does exactly what he is told.

"He depends a great deal on his cane, but this dependence is noticeably less than it was several months ago. During the last summer he has made greater improvement than at any time since his illness.

"One of the greatest assets is his willingness to obey orders. He does exactly what the doctor tells him to do and co-operates with him in every way imaginable, so that we are all delighted with the results."

It pays to advertise unless you are looking for trouble.

BIG YIELDERS SPOTTED IN CORN VARIETY TEST

In spite of the fact that the 10-year average yield of corn in Kentucky is only a little more than 27 bushels an acre, yields of more than 100 bushels an acre are not impossible, according to results obtained during the summer just past by Neale Tapp, a Henderson county farmer living near Little, who co-operated with County Agent D. W. Martin and the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington in running a corn variety test on his farm to find out which variety was the highest yielding one for that section of the state.

One strain of Boone county white corn used in the test made 108 bushels an acre, while another variety, Pride of Saline, made 105 bushels an acre. A third variety, Island Flint, made 104.5 bushels an acre, while a second strain of Boone county white made 102 bushels an acre. A local strain of a variety known as the Little ed Cob made 100 bushels an acre.

A third strain of Boone county white made 98 bushels an acre, while Hild's Yellow Dent, another variety used in the test, made 95 bushels an acre. Hickory King and Iowa Silvermine, the other two varieties used in the test, each averaged 89 bushels an acre.

The yields of the test were accurately determined by measuring off a representative strip in the various rows and weighing the yield from that strip. With these yields accurately determined it was possible to calculate the yield from an acre.

Henderson county has grown more acres of corn in the last ten years than any other county in the state, County Agent Martin says. The fact that high yields have been shown to be practical possibility for farmers in the county indicates that the crop will continue to be one of the important ones in that section of the state.

KENTON FARMER SHOWS HOW GOOD FEED FOR HENS PAYS

A striking example of how good feed and the right kind of care helps hens to lay more eggs and then keeps them laying consistently month after month through the whole year is found in the records of Harry A. Kendig, a Kenton county farmer living near Kenton, who is co-operating with the extension division of the College of Agriculture in handling his flock of Barred Plymouth Rock hens as a demonstration to show the value of recommended poultry practices. Mr. Kendig, along with 48 other co-operators in the state, has just finished the records which he kept for the year ending November 1. His flock was the second highest producing one out of the 47 being handled as demonstrations, each of his hens having laid an average of 186 eggs in the year. This is more than three times as many eggs as are laid by the average Kentucky hen.

Mr. Kendig started keeping records November 1, 1922, with 100 hens and poults in his laying flock. That month he got less than an average of one egg from each of his hens. However, good feed and the right kind of care recommended by the college poultrymen soon began to have its effect and in February Mr. Kendig got more than 12 eggs from each of the hens in his flock. The following month this was increased to more than 24 eggs from each hen and from then until the time his records for the first year were completed on November 1, each of his hens never failed to lay less than an average of 17 eggs a month. This consistent production proved to be one of the big factors in helping him get an average of 186 eggs for the year from each of his hens. Mr. Kendig had culled his flock down to 62 hens by the time the first year of record was ended.

The dry mash that he fed his hens was a mixture of bran, middlings, corn meal and tankage, of which 20 per cent was tankage, and in addition, he fed sour skim milk when he had it on the farm. The grain mixture that he used was made of corn and oats. Mr. Kendig followed the practice of giving his hens plenty of grain in the winter to keep them in good flesh. In the summer, the grain feed was cut down in order to make the hens eat more mash so that their egg production would not drop during the hot months of the year.

ESSAY ON PANTS

Pants are made for men and not for women. Women are made for men and not for pants. When a man pants for a woman and a woman pants for a man, that makes a pair of pants.

Pants are like molasses; they are thinner in hot weather and thicker in cold weather.

There has been much discussion as to whether pants is singular or plural. Seems to us that when men wear pants it is plural, and when they don't wear pants it is singular.

If you want to make the pants last, make the coat first.—Exchange.

THANKSGIVING AT HOSPITAL

There was a real giving of thanks at the Mary Chiles Hospital when the interest of the community was manifested by each generous gift. All the things that make a real Thanksgiving dinner were there, as well as numerous supplies for the pantry and storerooms for the rest of the year. The sympathy of the community thus expressed was most encouraging to those in charge of the hospital and the members of the board.
